Its principles instead.

Our principles explained in a few sentences.

Just do it. No frills. Urgency.
Drill-down. Push the envelope.
Maximise efficiency. Create benchmarks. More out of less.
Recheck. Do whatever it takes.
Never let go. Watch everything.
Outperform. Sweat the small stuff. Squeeze the last drop.
Repeat.

Our principles explained in strategy.

At Balrampur, we did not aggressively increase capacities over the last decade; we focused on sweating our assets instead.

At Balrampur, we preferred to invest in integrated multi-product complexes over standalone cane crushing capacities instead.

At Balrampur, we stopped waiting for realisations to increase; we began to generate surpluses from within instead.

At Balrampur, we did not grow our sugar capacity significantly beyond 2007; we selected to debottleneck instead.

At Balrampur, we did not chase fancy strategies; we selected to do what we had always been doing - only significantly better instead.

At Balrampur, we did not acquire or build assets beyond our core geographies; we continued to invest proximate to our existing locations instead.

At Balrampur, we did not seek to maximise output alone; we invested in futuristic environment management technologies instead.

This then really is our story.

Principles mean paranoia.

AT BALRAMPUR, WE DON'T JUST REQUEST FARMERS TO GROW MORE CANE, COLLECT ON HARVEST AND PAY FOR WHAT WE BUY. OVER THE YEARS, WE HAVE VIRTUALLY TRANSFORMED THIS SEEMINGLY SIMPLE ACTIVITY INTO A WATERTIGHT CASE FOR EXCELLENCE.

We conduct village meetings to encourage greater cane planting. We advise farmers on superior cane varieties.

We showcase these varieties via demonstration farms. We make periodic farm visits to evaluate standing cane quality.

We employ handheld digital equipment for cane survey.

We deploy a second team to appraise whether the first team got all its evaluations right.

We appraise the cane (variety, freshness and extraneous materials) delivered to our factory gates.

We replicate the best practices across plants. We focus on arresting problems at source.

We measure cut-to-crush tenures.

The moral of our story: Only the paranoid survive.
