TO OUR SHAREHOLDERS

Momentous events characterize the year 2001: terrorist attacks on an unprecedented scale rocked the world, a devastating earthquake shook our home state of Gujarat, and the merger of Bosch and Rexroth has significantly altered the competitive landscape of our industry. Through all of this, and in the midst of a lackluster Indian economy, we have enjoyed a 30% growth in sales during the year to a record Rs.647.6 million, 5% of which is attributable to the addition of the Bosch hydraulics business.

Domestic sales of hydraulic components (without Bosch) rose 25% on the strength of substantial demand for spares, as industry opted for maintenance in an investment-adverse business climate. Component exports rose only 11% in the wake of a global slowdown. We were especially encouraged by the 15% growth in hydraulic systems, coming in the face of virtually zero growth in capital spending by Indian industry in 2001. With an increase of 10% in the sales of our electric drives and controls we were unable to replicate last year's rapid advance, as opportunities for retrofit programs declined. Albeit on a relatively small basis, the star performer among our Drive and Control products was our linear motion product line, which comfortably doubled sales over prior year.

With our operating costs well under control, these sales levels yielded operating results, that is income before interest and taxes, of Rs.100.9 million, up 57% over prior year, while net profit rose to Rs.44.5 million, essentially doubling last year's record. Our return on capital employed averaged a very acceptable 29%, up from the 17% in 2000.

We could not have accomplished this achievement without the confidence of our customers and dealers, for which we are immensely grateful. Over the last few years, we have worked hard to earn their trust by proving our responsiveness, reliability and quality of product and service. We wish to go on record to all our constituents that we accept the franchise extended to us by our customers as our unconditional obligation to be the benchmark by which others will be measured.

To this end, we have made a number of changes. First and foremost, we have successfully and smoothly integrated the hydraulics business acquired from Motor Industries Company Ltd. (MICO), a Bosch Group company, on August 1, 2001. In the process, we have meticulously identified a number of opportunities to provide our customers with additional product applications, drive and control solutions, and better technical and commercial support, giving us confidence in our ambition to become and remain their preferred supplier. With the inclusion of our Company in the Bosch Group, we have also changed our name to Bosch Rexroth (India) Ltd.

Late last year, we established an autonomous business unit to combine and manage all our service resources and those of our dealers. Among the assets acquired from MICO is a hydraulic service center in Bangalore, which, along with our service center for electric drives and controls, will serve our south Indian customers well. Our Ahmedabad service center has already successfully demonstrated the benefit of such a facility to our customers of axial piston pumps and motors, processing an average of one unit per day in its first year of operation. Through our Service Division, we expect to set and achieve unparalleled levels of service to our Drive and Control customers and to some of their key end users, and especially in the fast growing area of electro-hydraulics.

Similarly, we will soon be setting up our training activities in an autonomous business unit, with training centers in Ahmedabad and Bangalore, and trainers rigorously trained in Germany.

Early this year, we have set up a separate Mobile Hydraulics Division to better focus our activities in this promising market.

We are keenly aware that the prospect of declining import duty rates for our products will put significant competitive pressures on our manufacturing resources. To maintain our competitive edge, we have begun a process of Total Productive Management (TPM) under the guidance of the TPM Club of India and the Japanese TPM Society. We see this as indispensable not only for the future of our manufacturing activities, but also for the acceptance in the market of our position as the foremost provider of drive and control solutions in India.

Our German majority shareholder has announced its intention to acquire the outstanding shares of Bosch Rexroth (India) Ltd. which it does not already own through a tender offer at Rs.56 per share.

On a disappointing note, our plans to mark our 25th Anniversary were derailed, first through the earthquake in January 2001, and later through the attack on the World Trade Center in September. Instead, we have honored the contribution of our Ahmedabad employees to our results by hosting a Family Get-Together at our Vatva plant in February 2002. Our outstation employees will hopefully forgive us for not closing down the entire Company by inviting everyone to come to Ahmedabad!

We were also saddened by the retirement of our Executive Director, Mr. I.L. Chitkara, well deserved as it may have been after over 20 years of productive service to the Company. Mr. Chitkara leaves a legacy of superb manufacturing and management skills, a tireless and disciplined innovator who has repeatedly restructured our manufacturing operations to adapt to changing process concepts and ever increasing customer demands. Fortunately, Mr. Chitkara will continue to serve us for a year as TPM consultant and coordinator.

Finally, it is my privilege to thank our channel partners for their continuing coverage of our markets, and welcome the new dealers who have joined us from MICO. I also wish to express our appreciation to all our suppliers, bankers, municipal, state and central government officials, and to our shareholders for their support. As always, my particular gratitude goes out to all our dedicated employees for their contribution to our success.
