The Indian economy grew at more than 7 per cent in 2014-15 and Inflation has again come down to 4% levels.

The Government's focus on investments in infrastructure development, mainly the initiative of promoting concrete roads in place of bitumen roads, would provide a great opportunity to the Cement Industry at the same time improve the longevity of the road infrastructure with minimal maintenance cost. Further the development of Tier II cities would give a boost to the dormant real estate sector and in turn the Cement sector.

The demand for Cement in India is still driven primarily by housing sector which account for more than 50% of Cement consumption. There lies a vast potential for growth of Cement Industry in the Industry and Infrastructure sector.
