4. BUSINESS PROSPECTS:

The Gems and Jewellery sector in India is one of the largest Foreign Exchange earner for the Nation (accounting for 13 % of India's total merchandize exports), hence it has been receiving a great amount of attention from the Governmental Authorities. But the last year and a half the exchange rates were too volatile fired by the financial crisis world over, and the industry being a capital intensive, had not much finance to source the costly raw materials. The input of rough diamonds for the industry during the last quarter of FY 2008-09 had fallen to over 25 % YOY. This in disguise would help the industry in reduction of the gap in demand and supply. This has also helped us in reducing our inventory by 13 % appx. (Rs 279.79 Cr as on Mar 31 '09 as against Rs. 320.90 Cr. as on Mar 31 '08). These movements reflect that the market in the months to come will demand newer goods.

Your company is now gearing up for the production of the larger type of diamonds, which would yield higher margins and a larger array of products for the customers to suit their requirements.

The US sector which was absorbing 45 to 50% of the jewellery manufactured by the company has seen a steep fall due to lack of demand support. But after the reforms and stimulus packages announced by the new President the market seems to be improving but at a very slow pace. Hopefully, the second half of next year 2010 will see the better times.

Classic has timely turned over to other markets such as Europe, Middle East and Far East where the demand for our jewellery produce is warmly welcomed.

5. FINANCE:

The company has maintained its level of finance at same levels in order to augment its raw material sourcing in these bad times where prices of Rough Diamonds are rising on a regular basis. The limits of working capital have remained the same but due to the change in the notional Dollar / Rupee rate the finance availed in rupee terms is appearing at a higher level.

6. DIRECTORS:

The Company has 8 Directors of which 4 are Independent Directors. Kumar Chandrakant Bhansali, Mr. Nirav K. Bhansali and Mr. Yogesh Kaji are liable to retire by rotation and being eligible has offered themselves for re- appointment.
