REVIEW OF BUSINESS

Flour Milling

The Government continued its current policy for the procurement of foodgrains for the wheat crop of 2003 as well. Under this policy, the Government has been fixing unrealistically high procurement prices for wheat and is committed to open ended quantities of procurement. This has led to a huge build up of inventory. In order to liquidate these inventories, the Government has been resorting to export sales and increased releases of wheat for welfare schemes, both at highly subsidized prices. This has increased the food subsidy to over Rs. 25,000 crore per year, which is clearly unsustainable. Besides, this policy keeps the wheat prices high and product prices low thereby squeezing the flour milling industry.

Reports suggest that the Government is desirous of correcting this situation by limiting its role in the foodgrain economy. However, no concrete policy changes have yet been announced.

During the year, purchase of wheat was made largely from Food Corporation of India. The ad-hoc policies followed by Food Corporation of India caused severe difficulties in both the availability and quality of wheat, thereby causing frequent disturbances in the markets and business. However, despite these difficulties, the financial results of this business improved. This was primarily on account of the steps taken to achieve the objective of creating a proprietary market for high quality wheat products. Certain fresh initiatives were taken during the year. These were aimed at improving customer knowledge, brand identification and making the products more accessible for the customers.

Policies to further strengthen the market position of our products will continue to be taken.

Snack Foods

The financial results of this business were adversely affected on account of the higher marketing expenditures incurred, the fall in the sales level of certain products and the rise in cost of certain raw materials.

Suitable action is being taken to correct the situation.

FIXED DEPOSITS

The total amount of deposits remaining due not having been claimed for repayment as on 31/03/2003 was Rs. 45,000/- in respect of 4 deposits. Out of the same 2 deposits for Rs. 28,000/- have since been renewed/repaid.
