MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

Overview of the World Economy

Global growth remains moderate, with uneven prospects across the main countries and regions. Growth rate is expected to be 3.5 percent in 2015, as estimated by International Monetary Fund. Relative to last year, the outlook for advanced economies is improving, while growth in emerging market and developing economies is projected to be lower, primarily reflecting weaker prospects for some large emerging market economies and oil-exporting countries.

Overview of the Indian Economy

The International Monetary Fund (IMF) and the Moody's Investors Service have forecasted that India will witness a gross domestic product (GDP) growth rate of 7.5 per cent in 2016, due to improved investor confidence, lower food prices and better policy reforms. Besides, according to mid-year update of United Nations World Economic Situation and Prospects, India is expected to grow at 7.6 per cent in 2015 and at 7.7 per cent in 2016.

As per the latest Global Economic Prospects (GEP) report by World Bank, India is leading The World Bank's growth chart for major economies. Initiatives such as 'Make in India' are expected to increase the purchasing power of an average Indian consumer, which would further boost demand, and hence spur development, in addition to benefiting investors.

BUSINESS PERFORMANCE, OPPORTUNITIES AND OUTLOOK

The business is based on the intrinsic demand for transportation services. Developing economies are facing two key transitions, logistics and cargo handling infrastructure required by steel, power generation and refining industry. With focus on crude and dry bulk carriers, port to plant logistics and oilfield services, your Company continues to provide end-to-end logistics solutions to its customers in a very cost effective manner.

a) Sea Transportation Business

The Company currently operates a diversified fleet of 15 vessels which includes Very Large Crude Carriers, Bulk carriers such as Capsize, Mini-capes, Supramaxes and Handy-size. Company's revenue have declined in the recent past due to reduction in number of vessels and decline in charters rates due to continuous slowdown in the Shipping industry. Shipping market is currently subdued due to both demand side constraints and oversupply of tonnage. While in the near term recovery is expected to remain subdued and uneven with freight rates likely to remain under pressure particularly in dry bulk segment. As per the report by Clarksons ("Dry Bulk Trade Outlook", April 2015), current downtrend in Shipping Industry is expected to offset by uptrend in commodities like coal and iron ore and supplemented by limited net addition of vessels due to scrapping of old fleet.

Company is taking a series of initiatives to weather the difficult market conditions on the operational front as well as on the financing end to make a sustainable business model for its shipping business. The initiative includes entering into long term contracts for deployment of vessels for ensuring assured returns.

Dry Bulk Market

Baltic Dry Index (BDI), the indicator of dry bulk cargo tariffs, had an all-time high value of 11793, in May 2008 and has reached to an all-time low value of 509 in Feb 2015. For last three years, the BDI hovered around 1000, and it declined in the period of Nov 2014 to Feb 2015. The BDI has since recovered to 634 by mid May 2015.

Dry bulk has significant share of worlds' seaborne trade. As per Crisil research in year 2000, dry bulk had 54% share of the total cargo volume transported in that year. In year 2014, dry bulk segment has even increased the market share to 55%. The global dry bulk transport grew steadily from 2794 million tons in year 2005 to 4545 million tons in year 2014 at CAGR of 5.56%. Therefore, notwithstanding some short-term challenges, the global dry bulk transportation segment is expected to perform well in the long run.

Steel industry is a major contributor to the dry bulk cargo, as iron ore forms 29% of the total dry cargo traded. Contribution of coal in dry cargo composition is 27%. Other bulk cargo includes cement, fertilizers, agri bulks, coke, anthracite etc.

As iron ore and coal combined contribute to 56% of the dry bulk shipping, the trends in iron ore, coking coal and thermal coal are likely to define the bulk carrier market in the long term. As mentioned in the Clarkson's Dry Bulk Trade Outlook (April, 2015), China's thermal coal and coking coal imports are likely to be weakened due to Chinese campaign to reduce air pollution in major cities, by slowing its steel production and coal-fired power generation. However, India's thermal coal imports are projected to grow, which may compensate the decline in coal transport caused by China's reduced coal import. Overall, coal trade is projected to remain steady in short term.

According to Clarkson, iron ore spot prices hit a ten-year low of less than $47/ton, caused by ramped up production by the Australian miners – BHP Billiton and Rio Tinto. They are expected to continue the expansion in year 2015. This reduction in spot prices has caused displacement of Chinese domestic iron ore by imported iron ore from Australia. Thus, Chinese iron ore imports may expand this year by about 6%, which will give big boost to worldwide iron ore bulk transport, which is expected to grow by 5% in year 2015.

The pace of bulk carrier scrapping in the year to date, particularly in the Capesize sector, has increased, thus helping to slow the pace of fleet expansion. The fleet expansion is likely to remain at slow pace, as orderbook-to-fleet ratio for Capesize, Panamax and Handymax are at low levels. However, bulk carrier deliveries are expected to reach 54m dwt in 2015 and 51m dwt in 2016, which is likely to result in continued supply-side pressure on the market.

Tanker Market

As per Crisil Research, as in year 2014, Petroleum Products and Oil Tankers have 29% share of volume transported that year. Crude oil tankers are classified according to their sizes as Ultra Large Crude Carriers (ULCC), Very Large Crude Carriers (VLCC), Suezmax, Aframax, Panamax, Long Range (LR) and Medium Range (MR) tankers.

The trend for last three years of Baltic Exchange Dirty Tanker Index (BCIY) shows that the index peaked in Dec-14, at around 800 and bottomed at around 600. The index has been volatile for last three years.

According to Bloomberg, because of decline in oil prices, interest in floating storage is increasing. Therefore, demand for VLCC and Suezmax vessels may increase.

As per Crisil Research, crude trade is expected to grow in 2015 due to increased supply and elevated demand from refinery additions. Incremental crude demand from Asia is expected to offset the reduced crude imports into USA and Europe.

Increasing crude output will drive search for new markets for the produce, leading to expansion in trade routes. Reduced ordering continued slippages and sizeable scrapping of old vessels have caused net addition in fleet to remain at a moderate level. The net additions are expected to constitute around 2-3 per cent of the existing fleet.

Demand & charter rates for VLCCs are showing an uptrend and may continue in light of expanding trade rates & moderate net addition in existing fleet.

(b) Oilfields Services Business

In the oilfields services business the Company owns and operates a fleet of one semi-submersible Rig and 15 land Rigs. Oil prices fell sharply from the second half of 2014, bringing to an end a long period of stability around $105 per barrel, and since then the prices have been ranging between $50 and $60 per barrel. This sharp price decline has put severe economic stress on oil producers and the oil services industry around the world. While there is a growing concern that further steep declines in the prices of oil may threaten the economic and political stability of oil-producing countries, there is also hope that lower oil prices may add the much needed strength to the global economy. The decline has been welcomed by many in India as it is helping to reduce inflation, the fiscal deficit and the import bill. But the oil companies, be they in refining or exploration, or both, are suffering.

Exploration & Production (E&P) spending is one of the most important market indicators of the health of the Upstream Oil & Gas industry. This is true from seismic to drilling to subsea — and includes the charter hire for all marine assets and offshore support vessels (OSVs). Capital expenditures (CapEx) for global E&P spending are expected to fall by 20.2 percent in 2015 to approximately $590 billion — the first time that spending has dipped below $600 billion since 2011 — but is poised to rise in 2016 if oil prices stabilize at or above the $65 to $70 per barrel threshold.

Drilling activity continues to trend lower on the back of a challenging crude oil pricing environment. It is expected that Oilfield services companies will see weaker revenues over 2015-16, as spending cuts take effect and also as customers push for better pricing and terms on contract negotiations and renewals. This environment has resulted in a sharp decline in dayrates and utilization of the rigs. The marketed utilization in the worldwide semisubmersible market is expected to drop to an average of 75% in 2015 from the December 2014 level of 90%. The marketed utilization of the worldwide jackup market is expected to drop from 86% in December 2014 to an average of 79% in 2015. The dayrate for 2G/3G mid water floaters is expected to be in the range of $140,000 to $170,000 in 2015 against a range of $190,000 to $230,000 in 2014.

Given the present market scenario, there is tremendous competition for the limited number of new drilling contracts that are currently available. Presently, leading Indian operators such as ONGC and Oil India have a few tenders in both the offshore and onshore segments that are keeping contactors busy. Essar is committed to building long term relationships with these leading operators and is participating in these tenders to find deployment opportunities for its fleet of offshore and onshore rigs.

While the fact that operators are rapidly laying down rigs and curtailing CapEx is certainly a near-term dampener for oilfield services firms, it should prove positive for the broader oil markets. The weaker drilling and capital spending could suggest that there will be tighter supply of oil in the future, helping to bolster prices. Turning to 2016, a recovery in global demand is expected to begin once oil prices return to a level that the operators are comfortable with, when it comes to sanctioning new projects and hiring additional rig capacity.
