2. MAJOR DEVELOPMENTS

The Company had started a major quality improvement programme from 2000 under which many new machines have been installed and other machines have been rebuilt. The expenditure on this manufacturing restructuring project during the year was Rs. 1485 lacs (2000: Rs. 1929 lacs). The project will continue till 2003 and will enable the Company to upgrade product quality from the non-EOU area and will add to production capacity, productivity and better efficiency of operations. The plant now incorporates some of the latest technologies for cost efficiency and product quality.

The Continuous Improvement Process (CIP) programme gathered further momentum during the year. Benchmarking within the FAG group raised the performance bars in many areas. Several teams worked on different workshops to achieve new milestones. Considerable cost saving was achieved with the help of CIP, Suggestion Scheme and various workshops. Production Unit 1 achieved the highest target score in the audits and was ranked no. 1 in the FAG Group of Companies for the year 2001.

The year 2001 witnessed a major thrust in Total Productive Maintenance (TPM) activities. Out of total 375 machines, over 366 machines reached Level-1, 252 machines in Level-2 and 79 machines in Level-3. TPM activities resulted in reduced consumption of oils & lubricants, reduction of down time and increase in productivity.

FAG India is now working with JIPM (Japanese Institute of Plant Maintenance) for its TPM activities for plant and offices.

FAG Bearings India Limited

During the year, INA Holding Schaeffler KG, Germany made a public tender offer for shares of the holding Company FAG Kugelfischer Georg Schaefer AG, Germany and successfully acquired these. As per the agreement reached between them, FAG would remain the management Company for FAG activities within the INA Group and the Company name FAG Kugelfischer Georg Schaefer AG and the brand name FAG would be retained.

3. DIVIDEND

Your Directors recommend for your approval dividend for the year ended December 31, 2001 at the rate of Rs. 3.50 (2000: Rs. 3.50) per equity share amounting to Rs. 581.61 lacs (2000: Rs. 581.61 lacs). In view of proposal in the Union Budget 2002-2003, income tax may have to be deducted at source.

4. PROJECTS AND EXPANSION

The Company (FAG India) alongwith FAG Kugelfischer Georg Schaefer AG, Germany (FAG AG) has entered into a joint venture with the Chadha family for manufacture of taper roller bearings at a plant in Pune, Maharashtra. The total estimated equity investment would be Rs. 548 lacs out of which the share of FAG India would be Rs. 137 lacs (25%) and the share of FAG AG would be Rs. 142 lacs (26%) and the share of the Chadha family would be Rs. 269 lacs (49%). The Joint Venture Company has been incorporated on November 26, 2001 under the name - FAG Roller Bearings Private Limited. The new Company is expected to begin manufacturing of taper roller bearings by middle of 2002.

5. FINANCE

The Company further reduced utilisation of working capital limits with the banks as a measure of cost control. CRISIL re-affirmed the rating of Commercial Paper of the Company as 'P1 plus' (the highest possible) and the same was utilised to place Commercial Paper at lower interest rates. Interest costs reduced by 25.1% over 2000 mainly on account of better management of working capital and by judicious application of Export Packing Credit combined with Commercial Paper.

6. MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

The core business of FAG Bearings India Limited is the manufacture and marketing of ball and roller bearings. The management discussion and analysis, given in (a) to (h) below, discusses the key issues of these sectors.

(a) INDUSTRY STRUCTURE AND DEVELOPMENTS IN THE INDUSTRY

The Bearing industry has two distinct market segments: an upper- end segment dominated by a few large manufacturers, catering to quality critical consumers such as the auto industry, railways etc. The second segment comprises of lower-end bearings for the fan industry and replacement market, with a large number of suppliers, many in the unorganised sector, where product quality rates secondary status but price takes pre-eminence. The second segment has also seen huge dumping of cheap imported bearings. The Company has been progressively moving towards the value added segment to take advantage of price premium and to establish a reliability position for better quality products.

The sales of the organised Bearing Industry in India is estimated at Rs. 1150 crores p.a. It has been declining over last few years and in year 2001 it declined by 5.4% (2000: 3%) in terms of sales value. It consists of Deep Groove Ball Bearings (DGBB) 57%, Taper Roller Bearings (TRB) 30%, Cylindrical Roller Bearings (CRB) 6%, Spherical Roller Bearings (SRB) 3% and Needle Roller Bearings (NRB) 4%. FAG India did not manufacture and market TRB until now and does not manufacture NRB. The total bearing demand in India, considering organised and unorganised sectors and imports is estimated at Rs. 2100 crores. FAG India's share in total market is 8.5%.

The fortunes of bearing industry are linked to a great extent with growth of the automotive industry. On the whole, automotive industry did not meet with the growth expectations in 2001. It registered a marginal growth within which demand for scooters and motorcycles grew by 11% and for cars by 3% while for trucks, commercial vehicles and tractors a decline of 11%.

Other markets of bearing industry like railways, fan and machinery could just manage to survive without any decline in 2001.
