In the last few years, India's economic growth has accelerated, and during FY 2018, it overtook France as the world's sixth-largest economy, according to World Bank data. In the last decade itself, India has almost doubled the size of its economy as its GDP rose by an average of 8.3% from $1.201 Trillion in FY 2007 to $2.597 Trillion in FY 2017. As the country brushes off the lingering effects of demonetisation and the implementation of the Goods and Services Tax (GST), its consistent GDP growth will ensure it continues the trajectory to become an economic powerhouse.

Infrastructure sector in India

Infrastructure support for the economy is crucial at this juncture of India's economic progress. The Government of India (GoI) is focussed on developing world-class infrastructure to expedite the nation's development as is evidenced by the increasing allocation of budgetary resources towards the sector. In Union Budget 2018-19, the GoI allocated ₹ 5.97 Trillion towards the infrastructure industry. A major proportion of this allocation is set aside for the roads and highways sector as rural and border connectivity and urban expressway expansion are the key to India's transportation network. Apart from roads and highways, the infrastructure industry also encompasses irrigation, civil works for industrial projects, power, telecom and railways, among others. According to the GoI, India requires investments worth ₹ 50 Trillion in infrastructure by 2022 for the country's sustainable development.

Additionally, the GoI has also been streamlining the process for obtaining various clearances, driving faster execution for private players partnering India's infrastructure growth. The public-private partnership (PPP) mode of project allocations has been constantly evolving to ensure higher transparency, as well as improved stability for private players within the infrastructure sector.

One of the most effective methods of infrastructure project allocation is the engineering, procurement and construction (EPC) contract, which ensures a clean balance sheet for the private enterprise involved in the project. Other methods of project awards include Build, Operate and Transfer (BOT), Hybrid Annuity Model (HAM) and Toll, Operate and Transfer (TOT). While the HAM method is becoming popular, the EPC mode of project award continues to be the one with the highest guarantee for success.

Roads and highways

As part of its new integrated infrastructure-planning model, the GoI unveiled the largest-ever road budget of ₹ 1.21 Trillion in FY 2019. Almost 60% of all goods and over 80% of all passenger traffic are transported through India's road network and hence, improved connectivity within the remotest of locations in the country is of prime importance. Data from the Ministry of Road Transport and Highways suggests that in FY 2018, over 122,400 km of highways were constructed at an average pace of 28 km per day.

The GoI has approved the 'Bharatmala Pariyojana', which is a centrally sponsored and funded road and highways project. The total investment for this ambitious project is estimated at ₹ 5.35 Trillion, making it the single largest outlay for a government road construction scheme. The project will build highways from Gujarat and Rajasthan, move to Punjab and then cover the entire string of Himalayan states – Jammu and Kashmir, Himachal Pradesh and Uttarakhand. It will then traverse portions of borders of Uttar Pradesh and Bihar, alongside the Terai region, finally moving to West Bengal, Sikkim, Assam, Arunachal Pradesh, and stretch right up to the Indo-Myanmar border in Manipur and Mizoram. Special emphasis will be put on providing connectivity to far-flung border and rural areas including the tribal and backward regions.

The National Highways Authority of India (NHAI) plans to build 50,000 km of roads by 2022 as part of a long-term goal of doubling the length of the national highway network to 200,000 km. Accordingly, Union Minister for Road Transport & Highways, Shri. Nitin Gadkari, has set the national highway project award target at 20,000 km for the current financial year, which is 25% higher than the previous year. Highway construction target for
