a. Industry Structure and Developments:

The scenario of the Polymer industry and economy in general have undergone drastic changes during the past few years, due to introduction of WTO and free trade development with various countries of the World. The Industry is now exposed to global competition with globalization policy of the government. The Industry is passing through a bad phase in respect of the availability of low cost of raw materials, very high cost of power and steam, entry of large scale players, etc. More than that, due to Global competition and lower price realization, the future of this industry appears very glumly, specially for small players.

b. Opportunities and Threats:

The Polymer industry is subject to competition among various segments of manufactures within the country and from manufactures of outside the country. The threats of competition is very high in the products which your company was manufacturing, in past.

The Polymer industry in India is facing server competition, as every big Companies and Government Organization specially Diaries have started their own plant with latest technology. The Management is intend to sell it out/lease the whole plant or Administrative office, which to clear all the outstanding debt of the Company. Necessary approval from the members is considered as part of notice.

e. Risks and Concerns:

Like any other industry, Polymer industry is also exposed to risk of competition, government policies, natural factor etc. As the Company is neither importing nor exporting raw materials / finished product, the Company has no risk on account of Exchange Rate fluctuations. However, as the manufacturing plant of the Company is closed, there is not much risk, except the realizable value of the plant at the time of sale will be lower day by day, due to obsolete technology.

f. Internal Control Systems and their Adequacy:

The Company has adequate systems of Internal Controls commensurate with its size and operations to ensure orderly and efficient conduct of business. These controls ensure safeguarding of assets, reduction and detection of fraud and error, adequacy and completeness of the accounting records and timely preparation of reliable financial information. However, as the manufacturing facility is closed, most of the things will not apply to the Company.
