Management Discussion & Analysis:

a) Industrial Structure and Developments

The textile industry continues to be dominated by the unorganised sectors like power looms and handlooms. The organised composite mill sector in the macro cities has to compete with these unorganised sectors, as well as the organised mills in town other than the macro cities including Mumbai, is facing serious difficulties due to cost escalation mainly in wages, municipal taxes, etc. and water supply charges. Barring metro cities textile industry is still encouraging. The Government recognises the potential of textile industry and is taking a number of steps to improve the competitiveness of this industry in the global market.

b) Opportunities and Threats

Indian textile industry has to compete with determined players like China, Pakistan, Indonesia and Thailand who have all the resources, huge capacities and low costs. The Indian textile industry has to battle against and overcome poor infrastructure, shortage of power and soaring global oil prices. The absence of integrated production facilities is a bottleneck for our industry, which leads to lengthening of lead times, which adds to the total cost of production.
