many of the most important questions, however, have not been asked. These include: (1) How can we ensure that the data are reliable and valid? (2) How can we ensure that the data are representative of the population? (3) How can we ensure that the data are comparable across different studies? (4) How can we ensure that the data are accessible to all researchers? (5) How can we ensure that the data are used for the benefit of the community?
