The Indian IT sector has proved to be the country's fastest growing segment, even in troubled times in the globally challenging economic environment of 2002-2003. The software and services industry, a major component of India's IT sector, showed significant momentum, higher than that of other industries in the country. India continued to be a compelling investment destination, as leading companies either set up shop here or beefed up their existing infrastructure. Outsourcing of IT requirements by leading global companies to Indian majors also picked up pace during 2002-03, in line with worldwide trends.

The Board of Directors has decided to plough back the surplus earned in the business in order to consolidate the financial position of the Company for bolstering growth through expansions and strategic mergers and acquisition. Your Board, therefore decided not to declare any dividend for the period under review.

New Project and Business Development

The Indian hardware industry is set to improve its competitiveness in the global market. The improving trend is primarily attributable to the conducive duty structure and enhanced incentives & support by the government to facilitate global competitiveness of Indian Hardware Industry and emergence of indigenous VLSI design house centers which could support delivery of value added services to the global clients.

The immediate upside for the domestic hardware industry, in addition to the above feel good factors, has been due to the government's decision to implement Conditional Access System (CAS) for delivery of pay channels. The CAS will be implemented initially metro cities and gradually it will be extended to other cities.

In the last year, as conveyed to the shareholders about the manufacture of Set Top Boxes at our Nasik factory, your company has already installed all necessary plant and machineries and accordingly made huge construction work in the factory. In view of the Government's decision to implement Conditional Access System (CAS) all over India in phased manner, Company is anticipating huge demand in the coming period. The CAS will be implemented initially in metro cities and gradually it will be extended to other cities.

In view of all above, it is anticipating new product will drive us to a new milestone to present a more success business proposition compare to existing state of affairs.
