MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

Industry Structure & Development

The growth of the plastic packaging industry is directly dependent on the growth of end-product manufacturers. Our main product "pails", are sold to the paint and lube industry. During the current year, economic revival and good monsoon conditions may propel the growth in paint and lube industry. This will in turn lead to increase in demand for pails. With your Company's forays into pharma and cosmetic packaging, the outlook for the plastics packaging business for the current year is positive.

Opportunities & Threats

The Company, having established itself as a reputed quality "pails" supplier in India, enjoys the confidence of leading multinationals like Castrol, Indian Oil, BPCL, HPCL, Tide Water Oil, Goodlass Nerolac, Asian Paints, Valvoline Cummins, Bharat Shell and others.

Due to various quality problems related to local unorganized pail manufacturers, reputed MNCs and PSUs are sensitive to the importance of quality and consistency. They are appreciative of the fact that Mold-Tek being pioneers in pail manufacturing with in-house product/tool design and development facilities would be a better choice.

With the introduction of "Ultimo pails" which have excellent tamper evidence and high performance features, your Company hopes to recapture volume business.

Transport cost disadvantages to the Company and sales tax exemption enjoyed by some competitors are threats Mold-Tek has to face in attempt to increase market demand for its products.

In order to increase the sales and to reduce the costs, the Company is planning to set up units in north and western India.

Segment wise/product wise performance

The Company's business segments are Plastics & I T Divisions. Again in Plastics, the sub-segments are Lube & Oils, Paints, PET Products, Consumer Products etc. The sales performance during the year is given alongside:

Rs.Lakhs

Segment Sales
Lube & Oils	3355.39
Paints	862.01
Blow Moulding	68.44
Pet	163.85
Consumer Product	27.95
IT Division	40.83
Total	4518.47

Outlook

With the introduction of a new product range and quality assured products, outlook for the Company is slowly turning positive. Efforts are under way to reduce costs and provide competitive pricing to achieve sales growth and reduce losses.

During the year under review, your Company has added a few major clients for its business in PET and blow moulding bottles. The plastics division is also focusing on chemicals, inks and pharma packing products. From these segments trial orders were received and executed and the Company anticipates regular orders. With enquiries and demand from pharma and cosmetic manufacturers, the outlook for these product ranges is also encouraging.

Growth in IT Division

IT enabled services are completely dependent on the US economy, which is expected to improve in a year's time. Hence improvement in the IT division is likely to take place from 2004-2005 onwards. The Company has participated in the international exhibition in USA which has resulted in the Company getting direct clients for its structural engineering back-office operation. The Company is also trying to enter Gulf countries for enhancing business prospects.

The structural design and detailing operations being executed in our IT Division is unique, which will give us opportunities once the US economy improves.

Risks and Concerns

Apart from normal risks as are applicable to an
