CHAIRMAN'S OVERVIEW

We believe that in business, as in life, there is no single owner. Value is created together and shared together, even if guided by a single custodian.

Values enrich

At the Padmanabh Mafatlal Group, of which our company Navin Fluorine International Limited is the flagship, value-creation and value-sharing represent our foundation.

We believe that in business, as in life, there is no single owner. Value is created together and shared together, even if guided by a single custodian.

The promoter is the custodian of this value, which is created for all stakeholders - employees, vendors, shareholders and others.

Even as we seek excellence, fairness and transparency at the individual and team levels, our collective responsibility extends to society and the nation.

Rebranding around values

Our new Group's visual identity reflects our philosophy of trusteeship and value sharing through the visual depiction of coins (small discs) that come together to form the letter 'P' of Padmanabh Mafatlal. The visual depicts that one disc exits the formation, indicating that the heart of the Group is reaching out to the world.

At our Group, these values were professed across the decades. They represent a rich legacy drawn from the same value-tree lineage of my late grandfather Arvind Mafatlal. The result is a value system serving as a consistent frame of reference for everyone at our company.

The five principles

As a custodian of stakeholder interests, we enunciated five principal elements of this distinctive way of doing business.

Principle one. Excellence at work = Creating value

We must be the best-in-class. We must engage in excellence in whatever we do across levels and locations.

Principle two. Partners in journey of the company = Sharing value.

We believe that equitable value-sharing across internal stakeholders represents the first step in enhancing value for external stakeholders.

Principle three. Sense of belonging = Our company's interest first.

We believe that trust begets trust. We enhance loyalty and commitment when we treat our family and stakeholders in the same way.

Principle four. Fairness towards all stakeholders.

We believe that fairness across internal and external stakeholders translates into enduring mutual respect and trust.

Principle five. Honest communication.

We believe that we must communicate what we see - comprehensively and consistently - across all stakeholders at all times.

I believe these values are more than just a better way of doing business. They are a better way to live.

Dear Shareholders

F.Y.2016-17 was one of the best years in the history of the Company. Navin Fluorine International Limited achieved most of its targets during the year. While revenues grew by 10%, EBITDA increased by 47%, PAT strengthened by 55% and EBITDA margin widened by 700 bps.

We reached such figures in the year under review because of our consistent performance over a considerable period of time. A decade ago, Navin Fluorine was a high-volume, low-value commodity player. The Company was faced with a challenge, competing in the areas where the global environment was not supportive. The given ultimatum was to evolve or perish.

The Company embarked on a strategic re-invention with the objective to grow its value chain, leveraging its inherent strength in fluorination chemistry. This was challenging for a number of reasons. What was required was a completely different organisation mindset, a different class of knowledge, customer engagements extending from transactions to relationships, changed customer profile and local benchmarks that migrated to the global.

The Navin Fluorine ecosystem responded by rising to the challenge under the able direction of our Board. Challenges were embraced. All the employees set stretched and specific targets for themselves. Learning curves declined. Continuous improvements were explored. New ways of working competencies were adopted. Internal standards for operations and supply chain were raised substantially.

Navin Fluorine International Limited evolved. The Company began to emerge as a truly global player. The share of value-added products increased steadily. The proportion of revenue from top global companies increased every year. The investment in world-class research, development and technology assets coupled with team work started generating desired results.

Our CRAMS business model proved to be a game changer. When we entered this segment, we needed to create a global facility capable of handling the scrutiny of stringent international customer audits. These audits, over the years, inspired a proactive preparedness, compliance with evolving guidelines and customer expectations. We continuously invested in our Dewas facility as the customer traction continued to increase, reflecting growing revenues from this business. Our acquisition of Manchester Organics was an integral part of our CRAMS strategy. We integrated Manchester Organics operations with our Dewas operations to create a robust global CRAMS delivery model extending from gram to tonne levels. Today we have effectively consolidated the capabilities of the two organisations in completely different geographies towards a superior customer experience.

We also believed that in addition to standalone product development projects, we needed to invest in joint ventures with large global companies. During the past few years, we entered into such relationships with a few companies. Our collaborative work with Piramal Group to develop, manufacture and sell certain specialty fluorochemicals is one such effort. During the year under review, we launched the Dahej plant and started commercial despatches to Piramal facility. Our recent partnership with Honeywell to develop a new refrigeration gas (R 1234yf) is another example of efforts in this direction. This illustrates the confidence of global giants on the technological capabilities of Navin.

With research-driven business specialty, CRAMS will continue to remain the focus of investments in the future. We realise and appreciate the contribution of two traditional businesses - refrigeration gases and inorganic fluorides. Both these businesses contribute to the profit growth of the Company substantially and we expect to see their enhanced contribution to our business in future also.

The result is that Navin Fluorine International Limited is an evolved Company with sustained profitability.

Outlook

I am pleased to report that the Company's outlook appears more optimistic. Its business enjoys scale, partnerships, profitability and a growing product pipeline, likely to translate into stronger business sustainability. Navin Fluorine finished F.Y.2016-17 with ₹748 Crore in consolidated revenues. Within the next few years, we will continue to invest in the business to maintain growth sustainability. We strongly believe that substantial holistic growth is indeed achievable since we enjoy an attractive order book, work with a large proportion of global customers from different sectors and enter into business-strengthening product development alliances with large technology-led innovators.

Overview

We are thankful to our shareholders for supporting the challenging transition in our existence. We believe that our business initiatives will add significant value for every single member of our growing stakeholder family.
