MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION & ANALYSISIndustry Structure & Development

India's GDP growth rate has averaged 8% over the last three years, up from an average of around 6% during the 1990s, and highlights India's emergence as a land of opportunities. The principle drivers of India's GDP are changing demographics, rising levels of foreign investment, a vibrant services sector and buoyant exports.

This economic growth has stimulated demand for property to help meet the needs of business, such as modern offices, warehouses, hotels and retail shopping centers. It has also boosted housing demand as a wealthier populace seeks upgraded accommodation. Moreover, shrinking household size and improved access to housing finance have boosted the demand for residential property. Tax incentives have also been granted to interest and principal paid on home loans, which has made owner-occupied property more attractive.

In recent years has India's property sector changed substantially. These trends of growth and modernization are set to continue, with some market participants forecasting that real estate development in India will grow from US$12 billion in 2005 to US$90 billion by 2015.

Global capital has become more interested in Indian property and is seeking transparent and liquid ways to invest.

Indian cities are customarily divided into three groups: Tier I, comprising of major urban centres like Delhi, Mumbai and Bangalore; Tier II, including such cities as Hyderabad, Kolkata and Pune; and Tier III, consisting of cities such as Ahmedabad, Gaziabad, Indore, Jaipur, Lucknow and Nagpur.

Over the last few years, modern real estate development has spread beyond Tier 1 cities to Tier II and Tier III cities. However, the longevity of this development is not certain.

PRERNA Infrabuild Ltd.

(Formerly known as Prerna Finsafe Ltd.)

The Indian government has constituted the Jawaharlal Nehru National Urban Renewal Mission (JNNURM) – a national level framework program covering 63 cities. The objectives of this mission are: i) improvement of India's urban infrastructure; ii) planned development of all urban regions — especially suburban ones — thus relieving pressure on better-developed areas; and iii) increased accountability of urban local bodies.

Private sector real estate development companies currently underway are undertaking a significant part of the urban development activities. To raise resources from the capital markets and to achieve economies of scale, these private sector developers are adopting better corporate governance and financial transparency practices. The property industry is also wrestling with oversupply in certain areas, such as in India's commercial property sector, which may lead to rent reductions and value drops. Meanwhile, property firms must also cope with a reduction in customer advances on new construction, increasing land values (making acquisition and development deals tougher), rising interest rates since 2005, and increased difficulty in arranging capital. The latter is exacerbated by rising interest rates and property prices, which have encouraged banks to become more selective in granting loans as they try to preserve asset quality.

Opportunities:

There appears to be opportunities galore for construction companies in the medium to long term in Gujarat.

Threats:

India has one of the highest levels of Property Taxes and Stamp Duty among the major countries in Asia – stamp duty is running at 5-10%. This leads to high incidence of cash transactions.

A multitude of Approving Agencies for planning permission also boosts costs, and adds time to development. A creaky Land Title monitoring system also means that ownership problems are all too common.

The mushrooming of property players without a track record has exacerbated these issues.

The Reserve Bank of India (RBI) has increased risk weighting for real estate exposure.

Mutual funds lack the appetite for long-tenure deals, and mostly invest in high quality debt, while pension funds and insurance companies have yet to invest in structured paper either.

SEGMENT WISE PERFORMANCE

The company is engaged in construction activities and it earns its income in the form of development charge. The development charge income was Rs.185.47 Lac as against previous year income of Rs.443.45 Lac and the net profit after tax was Rs.105.37 as against previous year profit of Rs.421.13.

OUTLOOK

The outlook for current year appears to be promising.

RISK & CONCERNS

Barring a handful of large companies, the industry setup is characterized by the predominance of the small unorganized contractors. To counter the growing competition and keeping in view the rising outlays on construction projects, the larger companies in the sector are increasingly investing in capital equipment. Most contracts being awarded are of a fixed turnkey type, which carry penalties and incentives for delay and early completion, respectively.

INTERNAL CONTROL SYSTEMS & THEIR ADEQUACY:

The company has proper & adequate system of their internal controls proportionate to its size and business. The internal control systems of the company are designed to ensure that the financial and other records are reliable for preparing financial statements and other data.
