MANAGEMENT DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS :

(a) Industry structure and Development:

The textile industry in India is on a comeback track aided by favourable Government policies and the boost to exports expected to accompany with the dismantling of the quota regime in 2005. This has spurred fresh investment for modernization and expansion of existing facilities. The domestic market has been picking up with the emergence of a growing segment of consumers looking for high quality products. The market till now was dominated by low price, low quality products from the unorganized sector.

(b) Review of Operation:

During the year 2003-04, the company registered sales of Rs. 4260.59 lacs compared to Rs. 3316.78 lacs during the previous year.

(c) Opportunities and Threats:

The opening up of the world markets consequent to the WTO agreement falling into place will bring many opportunities. Yet it increase the need to be globally competitive. The Company will continually upgrade its manufacturing processes with the latest technologies so as to retain competitiveness. Your Company plans to exploit this opportunity through a disciplined policy of long term investment growth, thereby achieving higher returns and enhancing shareholder value. With the opening of global markets, the threat of cheaper imports and its consequent pressure on the domestic prices is perceived as a business risk. To mitigate this, the Company is increasing economies of scale, modernization and through various cost-reduction measures, maintaining a competitive cost structure. The Company has a competitive edge with abundant raw material availability, low cost skilled labour and a large growing domestic industry.

(d) Risk and Concerns:

Risks remain an integral part of the business. The Company firmly believes in recognizing the risks associated with normal business so as to mitigate their impact on the business outcome. The Company encourages its employees to undertake calculated risk ventures to maximize shareholders' wealth.

The input of the Company have cyclical and seasonal fluctuation associated with them. The products are available at economical rates during the peak season and the Company is forced to carry the same based upon the anticipated cost-benefit analysis.

(e) Outlook:

The growth potential is huge in this sector with the global textile industry is likely to grow from US$ 309 billion to US$856 billion by 2014. If the Indian industry is to take advantage of this growth, certain measures need to be taken including the creation of sustainable competitiveness in the EU textile and clothing sectors, developing global competitiveness within the country and improving market access in the Third world countries. The Indian textile industry, with a large and diverse base, accounts for nearly 14% of the country's total industrial production and about 25% of its export earnings. Whereas textiles form a significant part of India's exports, it remains a negligible player in total international trade. The average Rupee realization is much lower in the case of Indian exports due to lower value addition.

(f) Industrial Control System:

The company has adequate internal control system commensurate with its size and nature of business and suitable internal control procedures, optimum resource monitoring thereof and compliance with applicable laws.

(g) Human Resources:

The company's strength lies in the human resources. The company recognises the fact that the human resources represent the most valuable capital of the company. The company constantly reviews its organisation structure and carries out changes to make it lean and flexible. Industrial relations climate continue to be cordial and the company believes in resolving any outstanding issues through discussions.

M/s. G.K. Choksi & Co., Chartered Accountants, Ahmedabad, retire at the ensuing Annual General Meeting and being eligible, offer themselves for reappointment. Your Directors recommend their reappointment.
