Annexure-1 to the Director's Report 2010-11

Management Discussion and Analysis

a) Industry Overview

The Indian Transformer industry has developed for over 50 years and has a well matured technology base and manufactures all types of transformers and can very well meet the country's demand for transformers up to 800 KV now going up to 1200KV. The industry enjoys a good reputation in terms of quality, price and delivery in the domestic as well as overseas markets even in advanced countries. The Indian transformer industry can generally be divided into distribution transformers, power transformers, generating transformer and other types of special transformers for welding, traction, furnace etc.

The industry is gradually consolidating its position under the forum of ITMA and BEE and aiming for production of low loss power transformers. With the active support of ITMA, the Transformer Industry is moving forward for manufacturing energy efficient transformers, whether Amorphous Metal material or CRGO is used for core material. BEE has rationalized losses for transformers upto 200 KVA and efforts are on to recommend losses upto 2500 KVA transformers. The IEEMA Price Index formula which assigns weights to the inputs has become accepted norm by the Industry players, thus protecting both supplier and buyer, whenever prices of raw materials are up and down.

b) Opportunities

The future of Transformer Industry in India is bright. Requirements of all types and ratings for transformers be it small distributors or large power transformers are on the rise. The power is very important subject for the economic growth society. Realizing the importance of power, the central government has been delivering liberal policies during XIth plan period of 2007-12 which has attracted huge investment from public and private players for generation, transmission and distribution of electricity and it is expected that the same will continue during XIIth plan period of 2012-17. This has given rise to huge demand of transformers to cope up with system requirements in order to fulfill the declared goal of India for providing electricity to all by 2012 and at the same time to increase per capita consumption from 700 to 1000 units. Coupled with this demand arising from the replacement market also points to a promising future for the companies in this segment. RGGVY, R-APDRP are some of the flagship government projects that are likely to further boost the demand for transformers in the immediate short to medium term.

c) Threats

The Industry started facing slower growth in revenue and margin contraction due to building up of over capacity and intensified competition.

Recently, due to high volatility in the prices of commodities seen worldwide, managing the inventory utilization and working capital has becoming challenge for transformer industry.

Cold Rolled Grain Oriented Steel (CRGO) is a critical input for transformers, which is normally imported from the US, Europe or Asia. Indian manufacturers including the Company are thus exposed to possible constraints on timely and qualitative availability of CRGO.

Copper and Steel are other major raw materials used in manufacturing of transformers. The prices of copper linked to LME Price. Prices of Copper and Steel are cyclic in nature. Fluctuations in their prices can affect margins of transformer manufacturers.

Transformer Oil constitutes about 7% of the input cost. The price of transformer oil is directly linked to the base oil prices. The Industry is facing serious problem in the form of Inadequate testing facilities for distribution and power transformers within the country. This constrains leads to high failure rate in transformers.

The growing presence of MNCs in the Indian power and distribution transformers market is a cause for concern for local manufacturers.

The delay in supply of power equipments, inability to get adequate fuel linkages, possible slow down in world economy due to Japan's post tsunami effects, reviewing of atomic power stations and related policy by government, and possible slow down in capital expenditure and losing out the momentum in adding new power generation capacity etc. poses fresh threats for transformer industry.

d) Segment wise performance

It is seen from past trend in India that power transformers account for around 70 percent of the transformer market whereas the distribution transformer market constitute the rest. The Company's customers could be broadly divided into two main segments viz. State Utilities and Private Industrial Companies.

e) Outlook

The Company remains optimistic about the future of transformer industry owing to sharp rise in power generation capacities in India and with the growing opportunities of export in the global market. With the increasing awareness and "Go Green" drive undertaken by the Government of India, the demand for energy efficient transformers will be on a rising trend. Considering the current order booking position and ability and confidence of the management to perform during difficult times, your Company sees clear growth visibility in time to come.

f) Internal control system

Internal audit and other controls have found to be adequate. These are reviewed periodically by the Audit Committee and with the valued contribution received from M/s. Abhijit J Kotecha & Associates, Chartered Accountants, Vadodara as Internal Auditors, the efforts are made to improve further, wherever possible.

g) Human resources and Safety

Your Company continued its activities during the year in a cordial atmosphere with utmost co-operation amongst employees and the management. The management is committed to promote safety, occupational health and proper environment is design, planning, training and completion of all tasks. Training are imparted to workmen in various new techniques and systems.

During the period under review, your Company remains "Zero Discharging Pollution Unit".

The Company believes in sustainable development and is committed to discharge its social responsibilities to the extent possible. The Company regularly donates to the institutions for noble cause. The Company has taken initiative by indemnifying small vendors and to lend them support for their individual growth.
