MANAGEMENT'S DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS REPORT:

Indian GDP grew by 8% during 2005-06 on top of a growth of 6.9% in the previous year. The growth has been possible due to good monsoon influencing growth in agriculture and related sectors. The year 2005-06 witnessed a sizeable growth of industrial production. Production of the textile industry recorded the highest levels. The following table shows production data of the industry:

Segment	2005-06	2004-05	Growth %
Yarn (Mn. Kgs)	3387	3221	5.15
Garments (Mn. Sq.Mtrs)	49007	45378	8.00

With Indian companies gaining stature in the international market as manufacturers of high quality textiles, the industry has recorded a well earned growth through a combination of domestic and export sales. The overall trend is likely to continue as the economy grows further and domestic production in all segments increases. Exports also show faster growth. The higher volume of sales on account of increase in own production has resulted in the company achieving significant improvement in working results.

The supply of input particularly Cotton was continuously soft during the year helping the textile spinning sector to achieve higher gross margins. The availability of quality cotton throughout the year also helped in maintaining the quality and realisation of higher yarn prices possible.

The company was also able to reduce its cost of production by implementing a VRS scheme in the beginning of the year at its Ganapathy Unit. The company always emphasised that the manufacturing excellence and consumer focus result in delivery of high quality products at the lowest possible cost within its limited resources and thus to meet any level of competition in the industry.

The excellent image enjoyed by the company and its ability to meet customer expectations in terms of product quality, price and delivery and the capability to create adequate capacities provided a platform for a great future in the domestic and export markets. The company is also envisaging to implement a revised financial restructuring plan including a modernisation programme. With the implementation of the above proposal and undertaking the other cost cutting measures barring unforeseen circumstances, prospects for the year 2006-07 appear to be bright.
