CHAIRMAN'S OVERVIEW

Dear Shareholders

The world is passing through such an uncertain times that it would only be honest to confess that there is no precise visibility for demand, revenues or offtake at this point of time. The reason for this haziness is that virtually the entire world is dependent on the discovery of a vaccine that can moderate the impact of COVID-19 pandemic and until one is developed, it would be difficult to estimate how, when and in what quantity demand will revive.

At Star Cement, we were not affected as much by the virus impact during the financial year under review as much as we were during the first quarter of the current financial year. The spread of the virus and lockdown only reinforced our conviction that for businesses to sustain through the lockdown a strategic clarity is primary. The truly sustainable companies will effectively resist a sharp downside in revenues, profits and margins during this downtrend but recover faster when conditions revive.

Companies that invested in governance will be better equipped to endure. I am happy to communicate that Star Cement was structured around a sense of governance from the time it went into business. We exist to address a specific purpose – in our case, brand-led cement manufacture in relatively under-addressed regions at one of the lowest prevailing costs – and will find it relatively easier to protect our brand and viability during this challenging period.

A company like Star Cement extended beyond a generic positioning and addressed specific market segments, strengthening its competitiveness. The result is that our brand recall is that of a first-rate customer-driven cement quality manufacturer.

A company like Star Cement was built around scale and austerity to survive downtrends and recover fastest following improved sentiment.

A company like Star Cement placed a greater priority in drawing down its long-term debt with speed, managing growth through accruals and generating surplus cash on our books, strengthening our long-term competitiveness.

A company like Star Cement retained stakeholders and protected its eco-system, strengthening its position to capture emerging upturns with speed.

The principal message that I wish to convey to our shareholders is that Star Cement is attractively placed to protect its eco-system, outperform or match sectorial growth and deepen its sustainability across market cycles.

AT STAR CEMENT, GOVERNANCE LIES AT THE CORE OF OUR SUSTAINABILITY

At Star Cement, what we manufacture in our factories is cement/clinker; what we market in the retail stores is a peace of mind.

This is because what we manufacture today will be tested across the years; the cost of any under-delivery in the quality of our product could have extensive implications for our consumers.

At Star, we believe that peace of mind is why customers buy from us, why employees engage with us, why vendors sell to us, why investors provide us with risk capital, why bankers lend and why communities support us. Over the years, we have invested in enhancing this trust quotient through various initiatives that have been described in this document. The ability to provide a complete peace of mind can only be consistently assured if our governance framework is secure, scalable and sustainable.

Discipline

At the base of our governance pyramid lies the discipline of strategic consistency. Over time, this discipline has helped the Company generate revenue, delta and productivity visibility across market cycles. Besides, it has enhanced the trust of our various partners who are assured of how we will respond to external developments, validating the stability of our responses.

Doing things the right way

At Star, we believe governance is nothing more than the commitment to do the right things in the right way. On the one hand, this enhances our organisational efficiency; on the other hand, it reinforces our ethical commitment. We believe that a combination of both has strengthened our eco-system, reinforcing our sustainability.

Long-term

At Star, we have selected to build the business around long-term patience. This approach has influenced all the investments we have made in our assets, technologies, brands, people, locations, products and trade partners. For instance, we invested more in plant infrastructure and technologies with the perspective that this would not just provide us with a superior product quality but would be future-proofed from technology obsolescence and enhance our productivity across the years. We believe that this approach – expensive upfront but considerably low cost when seen from a long-term perspective – has translated into the highest standards of technology, integrity and competencies at our Company. This commitment to 'Do Right' has translated into business robustness and stability.
